Course Description: Twenty-First Century learning requires all teachers to be able to incorporate a wide variety of tools in the classroom. This hands-on workshop is designed to introduce teachers of Chinese to a variety of strategies for using technology and incorporating authentic multimedia material into curricula design. Participants will explore Internet resources and learn how to develop online assessments. The workshop will also help teachers establish a culture-enriched curriculum, which will further strengthen students' interest across the levels of their study.

About the Instructors: Jie Gao, is a teacher in the Newton Public Schools. Star Lew teaches for the Belmont Public Schools.
