Course Description: This course is designed to provide strategies for conducting effective guided reading sessions for intermediate students. Participants will become more masterful practitioners in using guided reading strategies to help students consolidate and apply the important reading strategies that are essential to becoming confident, independent and competent readers.

In this course you will:

- Discuss and develop assessment skills to inform instruction
- Develop flexibility in guided reading instruction
- Explore reading workshop structures such as Readers Notebook to ensure purposeful work for all learners
- Develop program ideas and interventions that will directly impact your planning for literacy instruction

Required text: Notebook Connections, Aimee Buckner, Stenhouse Publishers, 2009
 Text must be purchased and brought to first class.

About the Instructors: Virginia Balicki is a recently retired elementary literacy coordinator. She is a literacy consultant and provides professional development for public and private school systems. Karen Goulet is the elementary literacy coordinator for the Wellesley Public Schools. In her role, Karen consults and coaches educators on best practices in literacy.
