Reading assignments, individual research and class discussion will support a personal exploration of a theme chosen with one's students' interests in mind. Questions and teaching support materials will be developed to provoke inquiry and critical thinking about ideas students will carry through life; and the altered book processes demonstrated and practiced each session will produce a form for making thoughts visual. Each session will be paced for curriculum design and studio process. The images and materials collected between sessions will be manipulated and incorporated into the altered book that will serve as an exemplar when teaching the unit.
