Course Description: You've seen the commercials and heard all the buzz, but do you wonder how you and your students can access and enrich curriculum with the iPad? Learn how to use the iPad and iTunes for delivering differentiated curriculum to learners and to expand learning beyond the classroom. Gain knowledge of the capabilities of the iPad to promote student literacy, address diverse learners, motivate struggling readers as well as support your own professional development. We will experience working with the web, photos, videos, notes and calendar all on a multi-touch screen. We will cover a variety of applications that can be used in special education for communication, social skill development, creation of visual schedules, social stories, reading and writing for students of all abilities. So let your fingers do the walking and join us for this hands on workshop.

Prerequisites: You must have an iPad for this workshop with iOS 5 (operating system). You also need the ability to download free and lost cost apps to the device. Prior to class you will need to set up an iTunes account. It must be active to allow for the downloading of content. Feel free to bring your own laptop to this class.

About the Instructor: Rosey McQuillan is a former classroom teacher and special educator who has worked as an Assistive Technology Specialist in the Wellesley Public Schools for the past 14 years. She has designed and delivered a wide variety of professional development workshops for Pre-K-12 teachers that demonstrate how to integrate technology into their daily curriculum.
